

UKCR Key Messages: Developing Transdisciplinary Research

Embedding researchers in organisations to co-develop solutions is an effective way to enhance the relevance and use of project outputs.

Building new connections across disciplines and with non-academic partners takes time and must be costed.

Resource and expertise are needed to signpost, connect, and synthesise findings from the funded research to enhance use.

Investing in roles that build and maintain a community are essential for maximising research value, impact and legacy.
