

Weatherlands weather report

Hello and welcome to your national Weatherlands update right here from the Council of Forecasters.

For the vast majority of the City of Celestia it will be another fine day with more lovely weather to come throughout the week.

But there's always one or two exceptions in the Weatherlands... It's no surprise that Trickle Towers in the West will have a drab morning with continuous showers, likely to continue into Thursday and every single day beyond that.

We've seen a slight drop in temperature in the south of the Forest of Fahrenheits which has caused some icy conditions at the Jumping Puddles, and the easterly wind from the Windssock Weather Wobbler Arena is likely to push that cold air into the Airy apartments and further East towards the Weatherstone Circle. So those of you visiting the standing stones over the next few days might want to take a scarf!

There's the possibility within the Northern hills and Sky Academy that we could see an increase in cloud-creatures, and one or two cloud-creatures around the Sun Citadel.

Temperatures around the silver lining could dip down two or three degrees, but this is very normal for this time of year.

Increasing levels of lightning around the Bolt Buildings in the South East suggest some rogue activity in the area, however, the Council of Forecasters will be keeping a close eye on this over the next few days.

Overall, the city of Celestia is seeing a MUCH calmer week after the knickernados and raining geese from last week's major storm. But Rainbow Grey came to the rescue to provide us with an extra special dose of rainbows and gorgeous weather throughout the Weatherlands. The council of Forecasters now remain in full control of the weather once again after the wrath of Tornadia Twist and wish you a pleasant week!